WHEN READING THE MEGILLATH ESTHER

Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman

When the Megillath Esther is being read in the synagogue on Purim, it is customary for the [illegible] audience to applaud at the mention of the name of Mordecai, the Purim Hero, and to hiss or stamp at the mention of the name of Haman, the Purim villain. It is against this custom, that which we would raise our voice. The desire for revenge is a very primitive one. It has exacted its heavy toll in human suffering. It should not be encouraged anywhere and least of all in a synagogue. Hissing Haman is not only poor sportsmanship. It tends to encourage hatreds. We Jews stand to-day as the world's leading good-will exponents. We should be proud of that distinction, and we should practise that good-will even towards those whom tradition has put in the role of the foes of Israel. Encouraging cheering after the execution of Haman, and the slaughter of his friends, will not tend to develop character in Israel. When reading the Megillath, it would be wise to eliminate [illegible] over a discomfited deluded and defeated enemy.

We commend to our readers the annual appeal of the Folks Farein for funds. The Folks Farein supplements the work of Federation. We hope that [illegible] will merge with Federation. Till that merger, it merits support.

ONLY A NEWSBOY

Several thousands [illegible] last Sunday afternoon to pay tribute to Willie Frankel, [illegible] who had died practically penniless at the Western Sanitorium. From all walks of life came men to pay their respects to Willie. The [illegible] the representatives of the press. Willie's former [illegible], some successful business men, some professional [illegible], some successful [illegible]. Jews and Christians, Italians and Irish, all [illegible] to honor this former newsboy, who for ten years had [illegible] bed of illness. [illegible] Willie [illegible] a humble station in life. But his generous and [illegible] qualities [illegible] him many friends. He lived [illegible], stricken in the full vigor of manhood, a victim of the White Plague, penniless and familyless. But had he been able to see the homage paid to him by his fellow citizens who saw and appreciated his rugged qualities, he would have known that his life was a [illegible] success. The world is improving when only a newsboy [illegible] the honors reserved in the past for aristocracy and wealth, and when [illegible] men and women find time to express their appreciation [illegible]. This newsboy, [illegible] his character, rendered the [illegible] service. Whatever his religious ideas [illegible] the synagogue.

THE MIZRACHI HOLD-UP

Some two or three weeks ago our esteemed colleague Rabbi Stern, in his "Commentaries," raised his gentle voice in a mild protest against the presence in Montreal of a delegation of Mizrachi "meshulachim" just on the eve of the annual Keren Hayesod campaign. He benignly suggested that there was something suspicious in the fact that the Mizrachi always manage to have a delegation in Montreal, with the threat of running a campaign of their own at the time when the Zionist campaign is about to be launched.

We [illegible] Hillel-like colleague, and [illegible] let the incident pass with a mere smile-[illegible]. We [illegible] the affair, and we believe that a full exposure of the [illegible] game played by the Mizrachi leaders will be the means of rendering a real service to the cause of Zionism.

About a month ago when the Montreal Zionists were deep in their preparations for the big Keren Hayesod campaign the shadow of the presence of Rabbis [illegible] leaders of Mizrachi in their midst, was cast in front of them. The Zionists [illegible] knew what this portended. They had had a similar experience once or twice before. The leaders of the [illegible] Mizrachi organization quickly made clear what they wanted: Money. If a certain round sum were not given to them for their alleged [illegible] needs, they would [illegible] organize a campaign of their own which would [illegible] the Zionists more in [illegible] income than the amount required to buy the Mizrachi off.

The Zionist leaders were not unaware of the [illegible] significance of this demand. Many of them [illegible] the situation in its true terms: it was purely a case of hold-up. Nevertheless, it was a matter of balancing probable gains and losses. The majority decided that it would be cheaper to pay the price than run the risk of a demoralized campaign. The Mizrachi hold-uppers will be given five thousand dollars, with the further [illegible] appropriation made to the Mizrachi by the Zionist Congress. In return the Mizrachi will [illegible] the Zionist campaign.

Let us consider the [illegible] facts which bear on this situation, in order [illegible] its meaning:

1. The United Palestine campaign which the Zionists were [illegible] the [illegible] Zionist organization. The [illegible] the [illegible] Zionist Congress. At its biennial sessions, the Congress works out a budget, and makes appropriations to the various Zionist institutions. The Mizrachi organization presents its budget to the Congress and receives its appropriation. [illegible] the Mizrachi [illegible] the [illegible] administration of the Congress.

2. As a matter of fact the Mizrachi organization is [illegible] name. It has no branches in America. It has not held a convention in America in [illegible] years. [illegible] the organization the leaders [illegible] a conference of representatives of synagogues last year but this

Palestine The Concern of Every Jew

The United Palestine Appeal will be inaugurated officially next Sunday. I trust all sections of the local community will respond. Palestine has a claim upon every Jew be he Orthodox, Reform, or Conservative. And at this juncture of Jewish events especially since the creation of the Jewish agency no valid excuse can be given for withholding monetary or personal assistance in this herculean task of re-habilitating Eretz Yesroel. The possibility for Palestine becoming a centre for Jewish life and achievement is no longer a matter of debate. Hence the hour has come for fewer speeches and more actual work.

Interpret the historic renaissance in Palestine as one may "Homeland" "Place of Refuge" "Cultural Centre," Palestine nevertheless, has a claim upon all of us, and we in turn have a claim upon it. I wonder what sort of an answer the Montreal Jewish community will give to the appeal? I do hope the giving to Palestine will be in accordance with the "standard of living." Palestine is also "an affair of honour." The nations of the entire world are watching the Jewish people. This Jewish people in the [illegible] chance to by "Negative" to be given the opportunity to build. Historic forces have brought about this opportunity. Let all Jews therefore grasp it with dignity and honor. Let all Jews find joy in sharing in the restoration of Eretz Yesroel. For Palestine is the concern of every Jew.

I met with Mr. Golden, the new Executive director of the local Y.M.H.A. He is a man with a fine academic training. He possesses a love and an enthusiasm for the cause of Israel. This love and enthusiasm he will give to the Association—I am certain. But the Y.M.H.A. members must remember that they in turn will have to give their co-operation yes and sympathy to the director. A leader needs also inspiration from those whom he is called upon to lead. This hour especially marks a transitional period in the local "Y." The new building about to be dedicated offers a challenge both to the executive director and members of the Organization. That challenge can only be answered by hearty co-operation on all sides. Lots of luck—Mr. Golden.

Buy Your Records Boys!

No more worries for the lad who contemplates the Bar-Mitzvah ceremony. He need not even get a "Rebbe" who will torture him for a year in advance making him "fit" for the occasion. The Rev. S. H. Morris of London has discovered a novel and easy method of training the Bar-Mitzvah to know his haftorah. He suggests fifty-two phonograph records be made of the haftorah for each week of the year. The only thing the Bar-Mitzvah boy need do is to follow the record. But—the Bar-Mitzvah ceremony today is a mechanical affair anyhow. Why add more machinery to it? However, this is the age of the machine! And the effects of the age are telling on us.

Vanished Hopes:—

In the north country are thousands of holes which once looked as if they might be mines. The rock from these holes would make good railroad ballast—nothing else.

Investment in unproven ventures is a necessary incident of mining development. It is not usually a wise investment for the man or woman who cannot afford to lose.

Select wisely. Choose the sound issues.

JAZZ KING TURNS CAR SALESMAN

From the muted trombone to a bona fide order for a new automobile may be a far cry in the life of the average musician, but to Paul Whiteman, recognized king of jazz, the role of car salesman or maestro falls easily and naturally.

Years ago Whiteman sold cars in Denver, Colo. He sold cars while studying music and dreaming of the day when he would turn the voice of the saxophone into music of the realm. So it was perfectly in character for him recently, while rendering concerts at the opening of a new Oakland-Pontiac salesroom at Detroit, to give up the baton for the fountain pen, step from the concert platform to the sales floor and demonstrate that he has lost none of his old-time finesse in the matter of getting names on the dotted line.

Whiteman's first sale was for two new Pontiac Big Six 2-door sedans. In two and a half hours he sold five cars, and in two days he ran this total to thirteen.

His own success in the venture prompted him to sponsor an automobile sales contest among his band members. Whiteman put up a new Pontiac Big Six sport roadster as first prize. Between concert numbers members of the band took up predetermined positions on the floor alongside display models of the new Pontiac or the latest Oakland Six—two musicians to a car, and a regularly employed salesman also in attendance to answer detailed questions of prospects.

MARCH 22ND.

First ritual murder libel, at Norwich, 1144. A boy of twelve or thirteen, named William, apprenticed to a skinner at Norwich, was found dead on Easter Eve in a wood near the city. According to a story afterwards recounted, he had been enticed away by the Jews on the previous Monday and was crucified by them in mockery of the Passion after their service in the Synagogue, on Wednesday, the second day of the Passover (March 22nd, 1144). This was the first instance in Europe of the infamous Ritual Murder accusation; and the long series which succeeded it has continued down to the present day, the munitions of the Papacy, the authority of princes, the verdict of scholarship, and the declarations of [illegible] notwithstanding. In this case the essential element of the Blood accusation was lacking, as no suggestion was made that the blood was used for the manufacture of the Unleavened Bread or for other ritual purposes. It went without saying that the relics of the supposititious victim wrought miracles, and that he was long revered as a saint.

MARCH 23RD.

Ritual [illegible] at Trent, 1475. The example set at Norwich in 1144 was soon followed up throughout Europe, and caused innumerable persecutions of the Jews. One of the most notorious of all these cases was that of Simon of Trent. The wandering fanatic, Fra Bernardino da Feltre, had warned the people of Trent in his Lenten sermons in 1475 against the alleged Jewish practice of child-murder, which he asserted would claim a victim in that year. As it happened, on Maundy Thursday, a child of two-and-a-half months, named Simon, actually disappeared. The houses of the Jews were searched, but no trace was found. However, on Easter Monday, some of the Jews themselves saw the body floating in the river. They hastened to inform the authorities; but this only went to heighten the suspicion against them. An apostate of infamous character, then in gaol, saw the opportunity for shortening the term of his imprisonment, by asserting that the Jews used the blood of Christians for ritual purposes at the Passover. The proceedings followed their usual course. The whole of the Jewish community was arrested and put to the torture, until some sort of confession had been elicited from them. The principal members were then forced to the font, and afterwards executed, the rest of the community being expelled. Pope Sixtus IV. at first followed the invariable policy of his predecessors under such circumstances, by condemning the libel and endeavouring to shield the Jews. Ultimately, however, he was forced to give in to popular clamour, and the dead infant was, in the end, canonised as a martyr.

MARCH 24TH.

Printing of Talmud permitted, 1564. For the past ten years, at the instigation of the inevitable apostates, an attack had been conducted against Hebrew literature throughout Italy. Everything which could be seized—sometimes even copies of the Bible itself!—was burned without remorse. But the main object was the Talmud, which was alleged to contain childish puerilities intermingled with blasphemies against the Christian faith, and which was thought with some reason to be the greatest bar between the Jew and conversion. With the accession to the throne of St. Peter of Pius IV., milder counsels prevailed; and a favourable Bull was elicited from him. The work was indeed asserted to be wrong and accursed. Nevertheless, it might be suffered to appear if the "blasphemous" passages were omitted, and if the pernicious name of Talmud were not employed! When the great compilation was subsequently published, therefore, it bore the title 'The Six Orders' or Sithah Sedarim, thus giving rise to the abbreviation of Shas still universally employed instead of the more formal name.

MARCH 25TH.

Obadiah di Bertinoro arrives in Jerusalem, 1488. This saintly Italian scholar, famous for his classical commentary on the Mishnah, had determined to end his days in the Holy Land. Accordingly, on October 29th., 1486, he set out from his home in Forli. Thus the journey, which could today be accomplished comfortably in one week, took him over a year and a half. In this leisurely progress, however, he had time to observe the conditions in the places through which he passed: and his letters to his father describing his experiences are among the classics of Jewish historical literature. His ultimate advent in Jerusalem marked an epoch in the history of the Jewish community in the city and in the Holy Land as a whole, and may indeed be taken as the date of the birth of the modern Jewish settlement in Palestine. He found corruption and oppression: a low state of culture and of moral life, and the most complete disorganisation. His strong personality, his scholarly reputation, and his eloquence led however to his immediate acceptance as the spiritual head of the community. He instituted in this capacity regular courses of study, founded a yeshiba for the study of the Law, brought charitable and benevolent institutions into existence, suppressed corruption in the community, and improved the relations with the Muslim authorities. Thus the ground was prepared for the vast increase in the Jewish population of the Holy Land which took place as a result of the expulsion from Spain a few years later.

MARCH 26TH.

Blood Libel at Valréas, 1247. At this small place in the department of Vaucluse, in the south of France, a girl of two years old disappeared on March 26th., 1247, being the Tuesday before Easter. On the following day her body was found, covered with wounds. Two minorite friars then in the town took matters into their own hands and arrested three Jews, who were thrown into goal and tortured. After seven days' resistance, they confessed whatever was asked of them, but recent investigators agree that there was not a particle of evidence against them. In consequence of this accusation, the Jews were maltreated in many towns in the vicinity, and those of St. Paul were plundered and imprisoned by order of the bishop. A special intervention of Pope Innocent IV. was necessary before they were set at liberty and calm restored.

MARCH 27TH.

Revolt in Roman Ghetto, 1619. A certain Jew, in friendly conversation with a Dominican friar, had jokingly said that he would not mind having his children baptised if the Pope acted as godfather. His foolish pleasantry was denounced to the authorities, and a force was sent into the Ghetto to effect the fulfilment of his promise. This was more than even the down-trodden Roman Jews could stand. There was a veritable revolt, which was crushed only by the employment of violence.

"The Rise of David Levinsky"

The

announces that by special arrangement with Harper's it will begin to run "The Rise of David Levinsky" as a serial story. April 5. "The Rise of David Levinsky," written by Abraham Cahan, editor of the JEWISH DAILY FORWARD of New York. It ranks as one of the great contributions made by Jewish writers to American literature. So real that it might be the genuine autobiography of a new American, this life-story of a Russian Jewish immigrant, is an impressive portrait of a human soul. It shows David Levinsky's conflict between materialism and idealism, his intellectual development, and his romantic experiences, each a study in the psychology of passion.

You will see startling pictures and hear gripping experiences in "The Rise of David Levinsky." You will never forget David's life in the Russian ghetto or how he begins his existence in New York as a hungry, lonely peddler. While making his way through college as a "seasonal" worker in a cloak and suit shop an affront by his employer changes the course of David's life and against his own wishes he becomes the millionaire owner of a huge cloak factory. Every Jew should be fascinated by this powerful story of Abraham Cahan's. It is profound, colorful, a realistic novel of literary importance.

Watch for the first installment of this book in THE CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW. It will appear soon. Read it aloud. If you are not a regular subscriber to the REVIEW make sure to become one now. You will not want to miss a single installment of this appealing story.

Abraham Cahan came to America in 1882 as a man of 21. In Russia he had been implicated as a member of a revolutionary circle. Equipped with an English education he began teaching English to his fellow countrymen in the New York night schools. He wrote articles and stories for the magazines and later founded the Forward of which he is still editor. Of his book, "The Rise of David Levinsky," it has been said by astute critics that this is one of the noteworthy contributions to American literature that Jews have made. You must read it. THE CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW has arranged with Harper's to give you a fascinating story. Begin at the beginning with the April 5 issue.

Three Speakers Set North Zionist Claim

Characterizing the Hebrew University, which, perched on Mount Scopus, overlooks both the ancient and the new city of Jerusalem, as no longer "a dream but a going concern," Dr. Emanuel Libman, of New York, noted pathologist, spoke Saturday evening at the Community Hall of Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue on "Notes on a Journey to Palestine: With Special Reference to the Hebrew University." Rev. Dr. H. Abramowitz, chairman of the United Palestine Appeal which is to be opened in Montreal, March 24, presided, and a vote of thanks was moved by Dr. Alton Goldbloom.

Dr. Libman predicted that the Hebrew University would become one of the greatest and most international of universities in the world and declared that such universities should be established not only in Palestine but in Canada and the United States to provide Jewish physicians with facilities not otherwise obtainable. He attributed the idea of founding the university to Prof. Herman Schapira, professor of mathematics at Heidelberg and founder of the Jewish National Fund, although the foundation stone was only laid in 1918 and the formal opening took place in 1925 in the presence of Lord Balfour. Col. F. H. Garrison, associate librarian of the surgeon-general's medical library in Washington, he stated, was sending to Palestine a complete library on the history of medicine which will be called "The Sir William Osler Memorial Library of the Hebrew University."

The following institutes have been established at the Hebrew University: Institute of Jewish Studies, the University of Jewish Studies, Institute of Chemistry, Department of Oriental Studies, Institute of Micro-biology founded by the American Jewish physicians' committee, of which Dr. Libman is the treasurer, and Dr. Nathan Ratnoff the founder and president, and the Institute of Mathematics. Plans being sponsored by the American Jewish physicians' committee called for the further extension of the medical faculties of the Hebrew University, particularly for the building of a much-needed University Hospital.

Tribute was paid to Dr. Thomas Hodgkin who first interested Sir Moses Montefiore, the noted English Jewish philanthropist, in Palestine and proved instrumental in establishing the full rights of Jews and Christians in the Mohammedan world. Professors Ehrlich and Wermser and Otto Warburg, as well as Baron James Rothschild and Dr. Chaim Weizmann were credited with making the first move in [illegible] towards the realization of the Hebrew University. Illustrated slides traced Dr. Libman's tour to Egypt and Palestine, and he made keen observations on the medical facilities in the Near East and the particular development and importance of the Hebrew University. [illegible] works of interest carried on by Hadassah, the Rothschild Hospital in Jerusalem and the Lena and Nathan Straus Health Centre were discussed by the speaker who wound up his address by expressing the belief that the success of the establishment of the Jewish homeland in Palestine would also mean the [illegible] of the Arab nation. For the first time in their history, concluded Dr. Libman, the Arabs of Palestine, through the Jewish institutions, were getting proper education and proper medical care.

From a village of sixty ramshackle huts twenty years ago, to a modern and efficient city of 5,300 homes, housing 45,000 persons, and operated on the same principles as progressive American or European places of equal status, has been the happy lot of Tel-Aviv, a seashore city in Palestine, under the regime of the Jews, declared David Arie Bloch, mayor for the past three years, in an interview Monday.

So important has this thriving centre become that three and a half million dollars will be expended shortly on the construction of a modern harbor so that shipping facilities with the world at large can be improved. At the present time Jaffa is being utilized, but there are delays occasioned by a necessary transfer of cargoes from ocean liners to freight cars before the central distributing centre of Tel-Aviv is reached.

In line with the educational and sanitary precepts of the Jews, the first two buildings to be erected were the Herzel College and a central water plant. Modernism prevails: there are sixty miles of paved roads, 33 miles of underground conduits, an electrical power station to provide municipal lighting for the streets and motive power for the industries.

"The old Hebrew culture influenced the life and cultural system of the world in days gone by," Mr. Bloch continued, "and it is our policy now to combine the traditions of the old with adaptations of the new to derive the most benefits."

Tel-Aviv boasts of a mayor and a council of twelve members whose duties are to collect taxes and administer to the municipal needs of the community. The official language is Hebrew and even a Hebrew Opera House was recently organized to cater to their artistic needs. A labor federation formed in 1920 numbers 30,000 members of whom 10,000 are women; their policy is to construct economically and culturally.

The dawn of a new era has begun in Palestine and with the continued influx of American capital and European labor drawn from Jewish centres, a period of still greater prosperity is expected not only in Tel-Aviv which mirrors the progress made since the present administration took the helm, but throughout the entire country, concluded the speaker.

Transformation of land in Palestine from a barren wilderness to a productive agricultural basis where the sound of modern machinery is heard instead of the [illegible] of the [illegible], more pleasing relationship with the native Arabs, [illegible] acknowledged by the powers as well as international [illegible] social recognition of Palestine as the Jewish home and [illegible] were some of the outstanding achievements of the Zionist movement during the past eight years, according to Morris Rothenberg, chairman of the executive committee for the United Palestine Appeal, which starts its campaign on March 24, in his plea for continued co-operation on the part of Jewry in America to back the efforts of the pioneer settlers in the upbuilding of the homeland.

Rev. Dr. H. Abramowitz, the chairman, introduced the speaker at the luncheon Monday, March 18, at the Mount Royal Hotel. Seated at the head table were S. W. Jacobs, K.C., M.P., David Arie Bloch, ex-mayor of Tel-Aviv; [illegible] Rabbi H. J. Stern, Edgar M. Berliner, B. A. [illegible], Dr. M. [illegible]erman, Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Rabinovitch, Mr. and Mrs. [illegible], [illegible] of New York, Morris Rothenberg, Rev. Dr. H. Abramowitz, [illegible] Dr. Max Wiseman, [illegible], Mr. and Mrs. [illegible], Mr. and Mrs. B. [illegible], Mr. and Mrs. [illegible], Mrs. [illegible] Kann and Joseph [illegible].

Money is needed to continue the work as outlined [illegible] the present [illegible] immigration from European countries [illegible] has been [illegible] during the past few years [illegible] must be undertaken to provide employment for the thousands of willing workers who are exiled [illegible] other continents in their efforts to reach a haven of peace and security. Business and industrial possibilities are unlimited according to financial and economic experts. The Rutenberg scheme to harness and utilize the waterpower is about to become a reality; a new port at Haifa for which $3,000,000 already has been collected will be [illegible] of the very near future and will provide better communication with the outside world; modern and efficient methods of government and management have [illegible] the remodeling of the [illegible] the creation of the Hebrew University marks another step [illegible] of the complete emancipation of the Jew [illegible] and the part America must [illegible] the [illegible] of a [illegible] home land [illegible] contribution of money to [illegible].

Editorial

conference had no bearing on the Mizrachi organization as such. (At the time of the conference we commented on it editorially in this journal.)

(c) The Mizrachi has no branches in Canada. It merely trades on the religious sentiments of some of the Orthodox elements who are affiliated with the general Zionist organization. Whatever claim it may have for support is being honored by the Zionist Congress which represents all the Zionists. When the Mizrachi take their budgetary allowance from the Congress, including the portion from Canada, they presumably consider their accounts with their Canadian supporters liquidated in full.

(d) These phases, however, are not by any means the most irritating ones. What constitutes the most disgusting feature of the situation is the timing by the Mizrachi of their threats on occasions when their competition would do most harm. They are not entitled to any money in Canada. They may, however, try for it, if they will. Theirs would not be the only unworthy cause getting away with support. But why should they always (this year was not the first time they did the same thing) pick a time for their projected campaigns when they would embarass the Zionists most? In the larger communities there is a sort of understanding between the major institutions not to conflict with one another in their campaigns. We know that in Toronto the Federation of Charities and the Talmud Torah and the Keren Hayesod always consult one another with a view to working out a non-conflicting schedule of dates. The Mizrachi leaders are prepared to jeopardize the success of the larger United Palestine campaign from whose proceeds they derive benefit through the Congress in order to make sure of a paltry sum for themselves. They, professing to be Zionists, do not show the Zionist cause the ordinary courtesy which non-Zionist organizations are according to it. But the fact is that they know that they will not have to stage any campaigns. Their object is to harass the Zionists and force them into a settlement.

There is no doubt that the Zionist leaders exceeded their legal powers in making their deal with the Mizrachi leaders. The purposes for which they are raising funds are specific. True the Keren Hayesod fund has a certain elasticity, but this elasticity can be played upon only by the Congress. Canadian Zionists have no legal power to tinker with the budgetary scheme of the Congress. If the Mizrachi are entitled to more money from the proceeds of the Keren Hayesod let the Congress give it to them. The disposition of the Keren Hayesod rests with the Congress and not with the constituent federations.

In pointing out this aspect we are not unsympathetic towards the Canadian leaders who made the unfortunate bargain. We appreciate that they were thrown into a serious dilemma. They were the victims of a hold-up, and did the best they could under the circumstances.

We suggest, however, that Canadian Zionism should not regard itself as being morally bound to carry out the bargain made with the Mizrachi. The deal was made under duress, and we submit that this circumstance vitiates the obligation resting on Canadian Zionism. The heads of our Federation should seriously consider the question of rescinding their contract.

Toronto Federation Annual Meeting

The Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of Toronto held its twelfth annual meeting Sunday afternoon, March 10th, at Scheuer House, 179 Beverley St., headquarters of Federation. In the absence of H. Rosenberg, president, Dr. A. Brodey, acting chairman, presided.

Dr. Brodey said that under the [illegible] year presidency of Harry Rosenberg, Federation had increased its revenue from approximately $60,000 to $135,000 secured in the last campaign.

Expenditures for 1928 for affiliated organizations:

Family Welfare Bureau, $30,000; Jewish Childrens' Home, $13,500; Jewish Boys' Club, $7,000; Jewish Boys' Camp, $1,000; Jewish Girls' Club, $3,300; Jewish Big Sisters, $750; Jewish Girls' Camp (Whitby), $150; Mount Sinai Hospital, $7,875; Hebrew Maternity Aid Society, $3,[illegible]; Mothers' & Babes' Summer Rest Home, Bronte, $3,500; Hebrew Free Burial Society, $750; Employment Bureau, $400.

C. I. Gelmann, executive director, gave a brief resumé of the 13 years' growth and development of Federation from 1917 when approximately $24,000 was expended up to 1928 when approximately $135,000 was paid out in taking care of the needy. The entire cost of conducting the last campaign was only $3,[illegible]. He mentioned the tribute paid Edmund Scheuer, first president and now honorary president of Federation, in the acquisition and dedication of Scheuer House. In mentioning the work of the various affiliated organizations of Federation which were covered by separate reports he laid particular stress upon the fact that the methods employed by the Family Welfare Bureau had been considerably improved and efforts made to apply scientific principles for the re-habilitation of destitute families rather than the distribution of palliative forms of doles and alms.

Detailed reports covering the work of their respective organizations were submitted by Mrs. Charles Draimin for Family Welfare Bureau; Mrs. M. Mehr, Jewish Childrens' Home; B. Raphael, Jewish Boys' Club and Big Brothers; I. Markus, Jewish Boys' Camp; Mrs. H. Clavir, Hebrew Maternity Aid Society; Mrs. M. S. Till, Mothers' and Babes' Summer Rest Home, Bronte; Mrs. P. Herment, Jewish Girls' Club; Mrs. Egmont Frankel, Jewish Big Sisters; Miss L. Levy, Fresh Air Home (Girls' Camp Whitby); Mrs. H. Lenorkin, Mount Sinai Hospital; [illegible], Employment Bureau, and S. Wener, Hebrew Free Burial Society. Rabbi Isserman moved a vote of thanks to the board of volunteer workers of the Family Welfare Bureau. Mrs. Draimin, chairman of the Board, paid tribute to the other members of the board. Dr. A. Brodey spoke of the late M. M. Cohen who had sponsored boy work. Upon the recommendation of the nominating committee the following were elected to the Board of Trustees of Federation for the ensuing three years:

S. Bennett, Arthur Cohen, D. [illegible], Egmont Frankel, Mark Levy, Eli Marks, E. Pullan, N. Rosenberg, H. M. Samuel, I. Tarshis.

A wire was received from Harry Rosenberg.

Rabbi Isserman asked for the establishment of a programme of buildings to properly take care of the work of the Boys' Club, Mothers' and Babes' Summer Rest Home and Girls' Camp. Refreshments prepared by the ladies of the various organizations were served.

Every Friday

There are too many speakers and pseudo-lecturers in this world with nothing to say and too many people willing to listen. The willingness of the old stand-by to oblige with a speech and the alacrity with which the meeting gets dressed to go down and hear it make justifiable a certain suspicion as to the quality of the speech and audience as well. From the records of these times it is evident that there is no Jewish community in Canada but has plenty of speakers who make speeches without being coaxed and receive hearty votes of thanks and illuminated addresses and even more tangible assets to say nothing of other invitations to speak often. Where it is so easy to extract from the general populace orators whose daily lives are not concerned with the subject matter intended for lectures, addresses or speeches there must either be a marked versatility on the part of the speakers or a talent on the part of the submerged others for listening to anything.

These men and women known as public speakers must be singularly gifted to be able to promise that on Tuesday next, God willing, they will speak collectedly on "The Soul of the Jew in Goluth," or else their opinion of their audience is low or they bank trustfully on a suspicion that most audiences don't pay any attention anyway except in extreme cases. After all, members have only to be present in the flesh and to behave with reasonable application. The amateur lecturer is, of course, sure of himself to begin with. Finesse, logic and other items which dominate the professional lecturer are trifles to him. But he must derive most of his comfort from the propensity of his public to sit at a lecture and wool-gather and still be in at the finish to applaud and look intelligently appreciative. For you may take a woman to a meeting but you can't require a written report of what has been going on, can you? This very fact is what preserves for the amateur orators their courage and impressive self-assurance. For a speech can be almost anything circumspect spoken by a person who has kindly consented to kill time for people who must have a speaker no matter what happens.

Consider some of the addresses by well-known communal speech-makers as they come to the REVIEW in the hope of publication. It is now by the cold light of day and the typed words look up from the pages without the moral support of Mr. Chairman or the magical assistance of gestures and voice manipulation. Most of it is drivel or a rehash of words and thoughts that hearers who listen have heard dozens of times in material which, if condensed to the meat, would take three sentences to say. Many of erudite speeches heard in large gatherings have been jumbled together like patchwork quilts. They are actually a combination of excerpts from sermons, travelogues, high school compositions, the Proverbs, the Talmud, Sholem Aleichem, the Jewish Encyclopaedia, current news of Jewish interest, and the son's bar mitzvah speech, and all in their present state naively linked together with the vocabulary and manner of speech of the speaker.

Of course it is true that in almost every community, no matter how small, there is a person who can get up and speak to his fellows in a way [illegible] them and even get money out of them. Such a one [illegible] because he is a thinking person with something interesting to say. But most communal speakers are men or women who [illegible] addresses and the sum of their qualifications is that they [illegible] addresses. It has been hinted more than once that some of them [illegible] to be invited to kindly consent but this is only hearsay and [illegible] taken for straight fact.

Perhaps it would be better if professional lecturers were hired or [illegible] engaged to fill what must be a deep longing for a guest speaker. One of the [illegible] of this wonderful and fearful age is the professional lecturer. The man or woman who gives it can fit his talk to the needs of his audience pretty well and give them information entertainingly [illegible] as a caterer does luncheons. These speakers [illegible] or psychology or anything and supply [illegible] the scattered intelligent who may chance to be listening in.

[illegible] far and away above the garden [illegible] which come to the REVIEW with the request to "insert this in the next issue of your valuable paper and Mr. So-and-So will ever remain grateful [illegible]" (With [illegible] the advertising rate [illegible]) [illegible] the average address is worse than mah jongg. It is worse because of pretense to occupy a more praiseworthy place in communal life and [illegible]. A lecture sounds grand; mah jongg sounds frivolous and silly. But at least mah jongg pretends to be nothing else except a [illegible] stream. The average communal lecture contains nothing but a weird assemblage of trite sayings, muddled thinking and tiresome platitudes heard so many times that it is no wonder audiences sometimes break down and cry weakly. This speech knocks on the head the wild-eyed theory held by foolish people that life is short, uncertain and fleeting. Because if life is all of that why will people elude its beauties by flight to the hot air of the communal lecture?

APRIL 5th IS WHEN IT STARTS

Miss the first few issues of

and you will be sorry later.

Begin this serial story with the April 5 issue of the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW and you will know the deep satisfaction that comes with reading a soul-stirring book. The CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW has arranged with Harper's to give you this most fascinating book serially. You will live with David Levinsky as he lives, first in the Russian ghetto and later in New York City where he becomes the millionaire owner of a big cloak factory. In his story, from its humble beginnings to the peak of his worldly success, you will re-read many human stories that you know have actually happened. This realistic novel presents with telling force the story of an immigrant's struggle for success. It is great literature, a classic by Abraham Cahan, editor of the "Jewish Daily Forward." Read it, read it to yourself, read it aloud, but read it

DEAN OF NEWSBOYS DIES

Willie "Bill" Frankel, dean of the city's newsboys, died in the Toronto Hospital for Consumptives at Weston. Deceased had been suffering from tuberculosis for years and spent some time at Gravenhurst sanatorium before going to the Weston hospital several years ago.

He was the idol of Toronto newsboys. Having been a newsboy himself for twenty years, Willie understood all of their failings, their hopes and their ambitions. To them he was like a father.

Willie was himself a leading boxer and excelled as a trainer of newsboy fighters, who gave many free exhibitions for charity and, during the war, in aid of patriotic funds. It was while trying to make weight for his fights that he contracted the ailment which eventually caused his death.

His game battle with consumption during the past few years and the record of clean sportsmanship and honesty which he had earned as a "newsie," won him a host of friends which included almost every sportsman in the city, from Mayor McBride, with whom he corresponded, to every kid selling papers on the city streets.

It was for the newsboys that he held a special regard. His last thoughts and ambitions were of and for them. It was his hope that the fund already in existence should grow large enough to finance the erection of a community house for newsboys and other underprivileged boys and his last plans were in that direction.

Evidence of this was given, when only a few days ago, he sent two tickets in a pool, on the English Grand National race to be run on March 22, to The Star Fresh Air Fund.

TOO MANY PALESTINIAN CAMPAIGNS

Not enough money may be given by Jews to Palestinian projects, but too many campaigns for Palestinian institutions are being held. Regularly the financial ambassadors of splendid Jewish institutions of Palestine visit our city and stir in us a desire to help them. But it is impossible to stage campaigns every other week. The following Palestinian causes have made or will make appeals in Toronto this year: The Keren Hayesod, the Hadassah, the Jewish National Fund, the gymnasium at Haifa, the Teacher's College in Jerusalem, the New Palestine for a Herzl Memorial number, the Hebrew University, the Worker's Organization of Palestine. All of these causes, we unqualifiedly endorse. But by staging separate efforts, they annoy a community and also compete with one another. Is it not possible to have one big campaign a year for Palestine which would include not only the Keren Hayesod, but all the cultural institutions of Palestine which have a just claim on our generosity. Mergers seem to be in the air. Why not merge all Palestinian financial efforts. In union there is strength. Divided all campaigns fail, and their projectors leave disgruntled with the community, and the community is disgruntled with them. We are so busy planning to dodge or planning to fund campaigns, that we had almost forgotten about our Purim sermon, and what is more important, about our Purim Hamantaschen.

The Woman Shoemaker

"Don't be so foolish," she answered him smilingly. "How can I get sick, knowing that we have so much money in the bank?"

Berchek began to work less than Channah. When he went to the bank, he did not come back right away. He would delay his return for a few hours. He would have a good meal, go to a motion picture show. And upon his return when Channah asked him why it took him so long, he would find some excuse, the car track was blocked, the car could not go. Besides it was very crowded; he had to wait in line for a long time.

"During the time it took you to go and come back, I earned seven dollars," she said to him teasingly.

One fine morning Berchek dressed up, took of Channah the small sack of money and went to the bank.

A few hours passed and Berchek was not back from the bank. Channah grew restless. ... Another hour elapsed and still he did not return. ... Her heart began to beat fast. ... God knows what happened to him.

Another hour vanished. She could not wait any longer. She washed her face, combed her hair, dressed up and repaired to the bank, where her hard-earned money was kept. She asked the cashier if her husband deposited money that very day.

He searched through the books, then, in a dry voice he replied:

"Your husband withdrew the entire amount, a sum of nine thousand and seventy five dollars."

Channah cried out loud and fainted.

It is now more than a year since Berchek disappeared with the money. Channah moved over to her husband's shop. She does not have to hide from anybody now. She works harder now than ever before, and consoles herself by thinking that her Berchek will yet return.

NORTHERN ONTARIO CANADA

Northern Ontario, now open for settlement at fifty cents per acre, contains millions of acres of the finest agricultural land in the world. Its resources in lumber, minerals, water, power, fish, game and scenery are immense. The land calls for men to cultivate it, and in return will give health, comfort and prosperity.

What settlers say of the soil, climate, farming, and forest life, is told in a most attractive booklet issued under the direction of the Honourable John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Full instructions in regards to acquiring a title to these rich agricultural lands are also given.
